NZ juniors on fire as New Zealand Pinestars win last round and the Test Match against the Australian Bushrangers.

Posted by on 7 June 2010 | 0 Comments

Article by Mick Finn Monday, 7 June 2010. The New Zealand Pinestars edged out the Australian Bushrangers by the narrowest of margins today- just one point apiece for the men and women.

Steep hills, lower visibility forest and 3-minute start intervals gave the race a different flavour, with more individual running and a tougher physical challenge than seen on the first two days of racing.

Winning the individual challenge was Auckland junior Toby Scott who gave the top elites of both New Zealand and Australia something to think about for the second time in three days. Scott was one of several NZ Juniors on fire over the weekend, taking the scalp of Australian champion David Shepherd by 9 seconds, with Oceania champion Simon Uppill in third. Fellow NZ junior Jourdan Harvey took 4th place ahead of past and present NZ Champions Darren Ashmore and Ross Morrison; another impressive effort from our juniors, alongside Matt Ogdens two third places and Angela Simpson's win on day 1.

"It's great to see!" said Morrison, who will be coaching the Junior Worlds team of which Scott and Harvey are part. "This Junior Worlds team is hitting top form at just the right time. They're going to do really well in Denmark; the sandhill terrain there is a lot like Woodhill" added Morrison. Scott's kilometre rates on the weekend were not just better than the top elites competing; they were faster even than those of former World Champion Carsten Joergensen when he won the 2009 Nationals in the same area.

With Scott not part of the official New Zealand Pinestars team taking on the Australian Bushrangers it was up to the minor placing Kiwis to pick up enough points to counter the 2nd and 3rd placed Shepherd and Uppill. It was a close call but with solid runs by Ashmore, Morrison and James Bradshaw the men just pipped the Aussies by one point, 28 to 27. After the close sprinting finish and 2 second loss of the previous day, NZ and Oceania champion Lizzie Ingham was navigating clean and mistake-free to beat Aussie Kathryn Ewels by 42 seconds.

"This time I was more definite with my route planning and execution" commented Ingham. "I'm pleased to be up there with Kathryn before we head to Europe!" she added. Both Ewels and Ingham are known for their ability to perform at their best in big races, but with Ewels picking up a 5th in a World Champs at elite level in 2009 and Ingham only racing in her first World Champs in August this year, it's hoped that the World Champs may be fruitful for both the elite and the junior elite New Zealand orienteers. The Junior World Championships are to be held in Aalborg, Denmark from July 4 and the World Orienteering Championships will be in Trondheim, Norway from August 7. With Aislinn Prendergast (Bushrangers) in third and teammate Laurina Neumann in 4th, it was a close fought team challenge between the two countries. The Pinestar women eventually edged out the Bushrangers by just 1 point, (28:27) giving New Zealand the win for the day of 56 to 54 points and an overall win in the Test Match of 189 points to 141.

Results – Australia New Zealand Test Match Round 3 New Zealanders unless noted otherwise

Elite women: 1 Lizzie Ingham (NZ Pinestars) 57:59, 2 Kathryn Ewels (Australian Bushrangers) 58:41, 3 51:12, 3 Aislinn Prendergast (Australian Bushrangers) 62:49, 4 Laurina Neumann (Australian Bushrangers), 5 Angela Simpson, 6 Penny Kane (NZ Pinestars).

Elite men: 1 Toby Scott 60:48, David Shepherd (Australian Bushrangers) 60:57, 3 Simon Uppill (Australian Bushrangers) 61:09, 4 Jourdan Harvey 63:41, 5 Darren Ashmore (NZ Pinestars), 6 James Bradshaw (NZ Pinestars), 7 Ross Morrison (NZ Pinestars).

Test match points, Round 3 NZ Pinestars men win 28 points to 27, NZ Pinestars women win by 28 points to 27. Overall NZ wins Round 2 56 to 54.

Total: New Zealand Pinestars 189, Australian Bushrangers 141.

Aussie foxes chase down Kiwis in second trans-Tasman Orienteering Test Match. Article by Mick Finn InfoNews.co.nz Sunday, 6 June 2010

An action packed two-race round of trans-Tasman orienteering in Woodhill Forest saw mixed fortunes for both Kiwis and Aussies.

Kiwi orienteers Ross Morrison and Lizzie Ingham won the preliminary race of the second Test Match round only to set themselves up as sacrificial rabbits - to be hunted down by fierce chasing packs. Leading the men's pack chasing Morrison's 45 second lead in the final race - a chasing start - was Aussie champion Dave Shepherd, along with Aucklanders James Bradshaw and Matt Ogden. All it took was a minor navigational error in the open forests for NZ Middle distance champion Morrison, and the pack caught sight of him and closed in like hungry foxes, eating up his lead like a Tour de France peleton. A peleton which swept through the contours, collecting up Morrison and spitting him out the back before rushing the finish line en masse. With the Australians yet to win a round of the NZ based Test Match, Shepherd put everything and more into his finish, to prevail over the strong Bradshaw by just 3 seconds. Young Matt Ogden showed the most consistency of the men to finish 6 seconds back and in third place two days running, with Morrison in 4th place.

With just a one minute head start over the women's elite field, NZ number one Lizzie Ingham was also feeling the pressure. Heading into the 4th control, Ingham lost over two minutes on a bearing up a vague hillside - enough for the pack to catch sight and pounce. "I'm kinda annoyed about that" she said "The train caught me and I stayed in front to number 8 then overshot it. It was catchup time then!" Refusing to surrender Ingham and Penny Kane regained the lead at the 11th control holding it right up until the very last. But Kathryn Ewels, tucked into the chase pack along with countrywomen Shannon Jones, Aislinn Prendergast and Anna Sheldon, and Pinestar Lara Prince, had one last card to play. "She steamed past at the last control, and my legs had nothing left" rued Ingham, who took on Ewels in one last gutsy sprint for the finish. After the dust had cleared it was Ewels in front by two seconds, with the first six strung out over just 17 seconds in the first-past-the-post final.

The two individual wins for Shepherd and Ewels were not enough however to claw back the NZ Pinestars Test Match lead, even with the Bushrangers women winning the second day by 30 points to 25.

A collective Pinestars tally of 57 points to the Australian Bushrangers 53 stretched out the overall lead for New Zealand to 46 point (133:87) putting them into a commanding position with one round remaining in the Test Match.

Results - Australia New Zealand Test Match Round 2

Elite women: 1 Kathryn Ewels (Australian Bushrangers) 51:10, 2 Lizzie Ingham (NZ Pinestars) 51:12, 3 Shannon Jones (Australian Bushrangers) 51:20, 4 Lara Prince (NZ Pinestars) 51:24, 5 Aislinn Prendergast (Australian Bushrangers) 51:26, 6 Penny Kane (NZ Pinestars) 51:27, 7 Anna Sheldon (Australian Bushrangers).

Elite men: 1 David Shepherd (Australian Bushrangers) 46:46, 2 James Bradshaw (NZ Pinestars) 46:49, 3 Matt Ogden 46:55, 4 Ross Morrison, (NZ Pinestars), 5 Karl Dravitzki, 6 Simon Uppill (Australian Bushrangers), 7 Darren Ashmore (NZ Pinestars), 8 Chris Naunton (Australian Bushrangers), 9 Gene Beveridge.

Test match points, Round 2 NZ men win 32 points to 23, Australian women win by 30 points to 25. Overall NZ wins Round 2 57 to 53. Total: New Zealand Pinestars 133, Australian Bushrangers 87.

Juniors dominate first race of trans-Tasman Test Match.

Posted by on 6 June 2010 | 0 Comments

Article by Mick Finn infonews.co.nz Saturday, 5 June 2010 The bad news for the New Zealand elite orienteers in the first race of the trans-Tasman Orienteering Test - they were beaten out of the top spots. The good news? They were beaten by New Zealand juniors who are hitting top form just in time for the Junior World Orienteering Championships (JWOC) on 4 July.

Toby Scott led the juniors charge, scooping the top podium place along with JWOC teammates Thomas Reynolds and Matt Ogden. Best of the elites was the Australian champion over the Long and Sprint distances, Dave Shepherd, in 4th place ahead of Kiwis Darren Ashmore and Michael Adams.

It was a similar result for the elite women with NZ Junior Champion Angela Simpson defeating Australian Jo Allison and NZ Champion Lizzie Ingham. There was more good news for the NZ elite as they piled on the minor placings to defeat the Australians soundly by 76 to 34 points in the first round of the three day Test Match.

"It was fun, fast and furious racing" commented Darren Ashmore. "The juniors were flying through the forest." "We all had good runs, with a few minor navigational hiccups, but those youngsters were fit, fast and in tune with the dunes" he added. "I had to dig deep to catch up to the pack after rolling my ankle but couldn't break free after that" said Ashmore, who is expected to feature in the Middle distance, his favourite discipline, on Saturday. Two minute start times and open forest meant that the preferred technique for finding the 28 checkpoints on the men's course was to run as hard and as straight as possible through the technical sand-dunes, with other racers easily visible. Oceania Champion and Australian representative Simon Uppill in 7th couldn't match his reputation as their best technical orienteer ever seen, but did edge out rising NZ star Ross Morrison by 49 seconds. Similarly Australian star Kathryn Ewels (5th at World Championships in 2009) was outside the top 5, with NZ Pinestars Lizzie Ingham, Penny Kane, Rebecca Smith and winner Angela Simpson all ahead, along with 2nd placed Aussie Jo Allison. Consolation for the elites from both countries comes in the form of knowing that this is just the start of their extensive buildup for the World Championships, while the juniors are near the end of their buildup which has consisted of many weeks of hard training in Woodhill Forest. And it is quite likely that the elites will find a little bit extra in the next two days of racing. Round two of the Test Match is a two-race chasing start Middle Distance in the Woodhill Forest, with the fastest from race 1 starting first in the 2nd race.

Results - Australia New Zealand Test Match Round 1
